

University schools and partnership in teacher education: Experience from a pilot project

Ove Edvard Hatlevik
Professor

Department of Primary and Secondary Teacher Education

May 20th 2019

Pre-pilot phase: Involvement

- Involving staff, both scientific and administrative, in a cross-subject project group at the Department of Primary and Secondary Teacher Education
  - Duration: October 2017 – April 2018

Pilot-phase (August 2018 – June 2020)

- Five schools are selected to have the role as University schools in the pilot study
- The aim is to try out various ideas and needs coming from the University schools and the Department of Primary and Secondary Teacher Education

One designated contact from the Department of Primary and Secondary Teacher Education per University school

One designated contact from the Department of Primary and Secondary Teacher Education per University school

Adds a second ITE academic based on the needs from the school

Adds a second ITE academic based on the needs from the school

When pilot-phase ends

- Probably select more schools to have the role as University school in the next phase (August 2020 - )
- Change organisation, for example:
  - Cluster the partnership schools into groups based on interests or scope
  - One designated contact from OsloMet to a group of schools with the possibility of adding more ITE academic staff to the groups